1. What is this course about?

1.1. Description

In a chaotic world shaped by transnational trade, socio-economic and environmental issues which reach beyond the boundaries of the nation-state, international laws and organisations seek to protect global markets and citizens through the relentless pursuit of legal harmony. This course introduces students to international laws which impact on the management and undertaking of transnational trade. It offers students the practical tools to become proficient in resolving and communicating legal problems that commonly arise in international business. Business people need to be aware of what regulations apply and where to seek support in order to be efficient and minimise risks of doing business in international markets. This course arms students with the skills to navigate transnational legality, regulation and governance. Considerations of law are tied to discussions of ethics, particularly in the space of multinational organisations and business in developing nations.

10.1. Assessment: Academic Integrity

Academic integrity is the ethical standard of university participation. It ensures that students graduate as a result of proving they are competent in their discipline. This is integral in maintaining the value of academic qualifications. Each industry has expectations and standards of the skills and knowledge within that discipline and these are reflected in assessment.

Academic integrity means that you do not engage in any activity that is considered to be academic fraud; including plagiarism, collusion or outsourcing any part of any assessment item to any other person. You are expected to be honest and ethical by completing all work yourself and indicating in your work which ideas and information were developed by you and which were taken from others. You cannot provide your assessment work to others. You are also expected to provide evidence of wide and critical reading, usually by using appropriate academic references.

In order to minimise incidents of academic fraud, this course may require that some of its assessment tasks, when submitted to Canvas, are electronically checked through Turnitin. This software allows for text comparisons to be made between your submitted assessment item and all other work to which Turnitin has access.
