1. What is this course about?

1.1. Description

This course introduces students to the way in which law engages with the non-human environment. Firstly, the course locates and reconceptualises 'nature' within the legal sphere, by focusing on the international emergence of an ecological jurisprudence. Students will then engage with environmental policies and regulations situated in diverse philosophical frameworks. Finally, the course will focus on the Australian environmental regulatory regime.

1.2. How will this course be delivered?

ACTIVITY	HOURS	BEGINNING WEEK	FREQUENCY

1.3. Course Topics

The course engages with critical and theoretical analyses of law and in relation to the contested idea of 'nature'. Working through both practical and theoretical understandings of nature and the environment, this course examines the Australian legal framework through an analytical lens. In this course, you will learn:

- Law and Nature – How do law and nature interact, and what are the crises and predicaments that face the environment? (Ecological Crises, Ideas of Law and Nature, Environmental Ethics, Wild Law)
- Ecological Jurisprudence – How are law, society, and nature interconnected? (Ecological Jurisprudence, International Environmental Law, Australian Environmental Law)
- Legal Frameworks – How does Australian law govern our interactions with nature? (Planning Law, Biodiversity Protection, Cultural Heritage, Pollution and Waste Management, Compliance and Enforcement)

10. What administrative information is relevant to this course?

10.1. Assessment: Academic Integrity

Academic integrity is the ethical standard of university participation. It ensures that students graduate as a result of proving they are competent in their discipline. This is integral in maintaining the value of academic qualifications. Each industry has expectations and standards of the skills and knowledge within that discipline and these are reflected in assessment.

Academic integrity means that you do not engage in any activity that is considered to be academic fraud; including plagiarism, collusion or outsourcing any part of any assessment item to any other person. You are expected to be honest and ethical by completing all work yourself and indicating in your work which ideas and information were developed by you and which were taken from others. You cannot provide your assessment work to others. You are also expected to provide evidence of wide and critical reading, usually by using appropriate academic references.

In order to minimise incidents of academic fraud, this course may require that some of its assessment tasks, when submitted to Canvas, are electronically checked through Turnitin. This software allows for text comparisons to be made between your submitted assessment item and all other work to which Turnitin has access.

10.2. Assessment: Additional Requirements

Eligibility for Supplementary Assessment

Your eligibility for supplementary assessment in a course is dependent of the following conditions applying:

- (a) The final mark is in the percentage range 47% to 49.4%; and
